

Value Statement CAFWA-SA

In advocating for an inclusive community where children, young people and families are secure, safe and nurtured, the Child and Family Welfare Association of SA, a sector peak body, values its operational freedom that stems from being a not-for-profit organisation and is independent of any religious or political affiliation.

We set high standards to preserve the support and trust of our members, the government of the day, key stakeholders and the community at large.

We will fulfill our leadership role in the child and family services sector, and in all of our work, we strive to:

- Respect the rights and dignity of every person
- Give hope by creating opportunities as we believe in the potential of all children and families
- Collaborate by working in partnership with our clients colleagues and stakeholders to give a voice to children and their families
- Demonstrate integrity by being ethical, honest and accountable in all our dealings
- Practise equity by advocating for social justice and do so with compassion and an emphasis on fairness.
